

WHAT TO HAND TO AI IN ACCOUNTING

Start with a threshold and a registry

15 000 zł

At that amount and above, Polish law requires a “White List” check on the contractor’s account. Fixed threshold, official registry, no judgement — that is the shape of work worth handing over.

THE PROBLEM

Nobody tells you where the line runs

One side says AI will replace your accountant, the other says do not touch it. Neither helps on a Monday morning. The line does not run between easy and hard — it runs between what can be checked against a source and what takes a decision.

FITS THE AGENT

Work that has a source to check

Every one of these has a single place where the result can be verified: your invoices in wFirma, a state registry, or the official deadline calendar. The agent does not answer from memory — it goes and fetches the data.

Checking a large payment	MF White List
Autofill by NIP	public registries
Watching the deadlines	tax calendar
Issuing an e-invoice	KSeF, FA(3) format

DOES NOT FIT THE AGENT

The signature stays on your side

The agent helps you calculate and file, but it does not replace an accountant or a tax adviser. Rules change and the details depend on your specific situation — and somebody has to answer for that.

Calculating and filing	the agent
The details of your case	your accountant
A tax judgement	a tax adviser
The final decision	you

THE TEST

Three questions before you hand it over

The same rule works outside accounting — in the warehouse, in customer support, in contracts. If the first two answers are yes and the third is no, the task suits an agent.

Can it be checked at the source?	yes
Does the rule have a threshold?	yes
Does it need judgement?	no

MICODE

We will draw that line inside your company

We start with a conversation: which of your processes have a checkable source and a clear rule, and which are better left to a person. Only then do we build an agent wired into your systems and your data.
